WILL WRECK FALSE FRONT OF MISSION

WRECKING of the triangular "false front" surmounting the front entrance of Carmel mission will begin Monday, as a result of discovery Wednesday by Milton Latham that supports anchoring the masonry to the mission roof have broken loose and that the heavy projection constitutes a menace. The elements are not treating the old mission too kindly, and this emergency situation calls attention to the immediate necessity for more repairs and a well-thought-out conservation program. As explained by Latham, the south tower at the mission's front has been undermined by water draining down the adjacent hill. It has settled away from the building and weakened the whole front of the structure.

The triangular front, which was added in the restoration work of the '80s will not be a serious loss, as it changed the original low arched design of the entrance, and in process of accurate restoration, would have been abolished in time.

The shingled roof of the church building is also in bad condition, Latham reports. "You can stick your fist through it anywhere," he said. After the heavy rain Tuesday night the floor of the sacristy was covered with pools of water. The tongue-groove construction of the arched ceiling in the church has drained off water so it has not come through the roof there, but drainage down the adobe side-walls is not considered too good for the building.

Noticing the extent to which the mission suffered in the heavy rain, Father Michael D. O'Connell called Latham Wednesday morning. After the architect gave his report as to the peril embodied in the top-heavy cornice, orders were given to begin the work of removing it.

Bullock Youngster Evades Stork and Arrives In Auto

Disdaining the conventional mode of traveling via the stork, little Robert Mark Bullock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bullock of Carmel arrived at the Peninsula Community Hospital by Ford automobile.

Having notified his parents last Tuesday night that he was on his way, they set out for the hospital but he arrived before they could reach there. Robert Mark was born in the Ford as it drove into the hospital grounds.

Adolph Hanke to Take School Office May 14

Adolph G. E. Hanke, elected without contest to fill the vacancy occurring on Sunset school board of trustees with the expiration of Mrs. Daisy Taylor's term in May, received 61 votes in the election last Friday. He will be officially seated at the meeting of May 14, joining E. H. Ewig and Mrs. Helen Levinson. The April meeting would regularly be held next Tuesday evening, but due to the program at the school that evening in observance of Public School Week, the meeting will be held Thursday evening instead.

TRAIN SCHEDULE CHANGE IN EFFECT NEXT SUNDAY

Peninsula residents who travel by train to San Francisco will be interested in the change of schedule to become effective Saturday on the early morning train.

The train which has been leaving the Monterey station at 8:34 a. m. beginning Sunday will leave at 7:20 instead. It will arrive at San Francisco at 10:40 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Calkins were entertained over the week-end at the Marshall Bond ranch near Hanford.

KUSTER WOULD HAVE CITY BUY HIS PLAYHOUSE

IN December, 1933, Edward G. Kuster wrote to the Carmel city council a letter which was tabled and remained tabled until Wednesday evening, when Mr. Kuster asked for it to be resurrected. He renewed the offer, embodied in this communication, to sell to the city at a price to be fixed by appraisers The Community Playhouse and the old Arts and Crafts Hall, together with the five lots on which they stand. His proposal was again tabled until the regular May meeting, in order that the public may discuss the proposition in the meantime.

Explaining his offer, Mr. Kuster declared frankly that he wishes to relieve himself of what has become a "spiritual white elephant." The theater, he said, has been so consistently a bone of contention between conflicting theatrical groups that he would like to be relieved of ownership of it. The city, he feels, is the only agency which could successfully hold the balance between the conflicting groups. By holding the Playhouse as a civic theater, the city could give wide latitude to various play-producing groups, achieving at once diversity and synthesis.

Quotes MacGowan

Mr. Kuster talked at length on the unfortunate results, to Carmel, of the animosity engendered between various amateur groups. He quoted Kenneth MacGowan, who wrote "Footlights Across America" after making a study of the little theater movement for the Carnegie foundation as one who "pilloried Carmel as the worst spot in America for theater controversy and absurdity; a community of 2000 actors and no audience."

City Attorney Argyll Campbell, questioned after the meeting on the legal proceedure which would be followed in case the city decided to make the purchase, said it could only be done through bond issue, as the law prohibits any other means of purchase unless money for the purpose is in the treasury.

Meeting Called

By resolution of the council, the evening of April 17 was designated as the time, the council chambers the place, for a public hearing on the proposed rezoning of the lots at Ninth and Dolores which the Woman's club wishes to purchase as a building site. Advance formalities having been complied with, City Attorney Campbell pronounced the various papers submitted by the club as "all in good order." The zoning ordinance requires that in case adjacent property owners petition for a residential lot to be zoned into the business district, a public hearing must be held for protests, if any. After the hearing on April 17 the council will give its decision.

Named Forester

Everett Smith was appointed city forester, without compensation, and by resolution he was given authority to investigate and act in conjunction with the commissioner of streets on removal of dead trees.

When the council adjourned it was out of respect to Leon Narvaez, who passed away this week and was memoralized by Councilman Catlin as "a good and faithful civic servant." His position as janitor of the city hall was given by action of the council to his father, Leon P. Narvaez.

Youthful Nonagenarian Honored On His Birthday by Business Men

CARMEL business men and women donned their best bibs and tuckers Tuesday evening and foregathered at Pine Inn for a dinner honoring James A. Eustace on his ninetieth birthday. This was also a first of a series of get-together dinners for members of the Carmel Business Association.

The guest of honor, with a big red carnation in his buttonhole, was in fine fettle. As he rose to make an informal talk, which consisted of a series of whimsical anecdotes of his business experiences ranging over a period of 65 years, an uninformed observer would have put him down as a well-preserved man in his sixties. His voice was clear and resonant, his delivery swift and easy, racy with Irish wit. His fine, clear, unwrinkled skin glowed with the pleasure of the occasion, and he found simple, moving terms with which to express his appreciation of the tributes paid him by other speakers.

Opens New York Business

Sixty-five years ago the venerable Carmelite opened his first jewelry shop in New York City. He learned soon the necessity of controlling the temper which matched his "terra cotta" hair, and that combined with the later realization that worry is just as destructive as anger, gave him an inner control and serenity which he believes accounts for the fact that years have touched him lightly. His career as a designer of fine laces and embroideries began in San Francisco nearly half a century ago, through an accident that led him to apply, at the "psychological moment" when he was down to his last nickel, for a position as designer in a shop specializing in linens.

Harold Nielsen, president of the business association, presided at the speakers' table, and told of the objectives of the organization. He mentioned the annual decoration of the municipal Christmas trees, and spoke, without pride, of the street decorations for the Serra festival last summer, for which, he said, those responsible were "almost run out of town." This year, he promised, "the poets and artists and writers" would be asked to help. He called upon Chief of Police Robert Norton to report on collection of the business licenses which were levied with the approval of the Business Association, and the ex-officio license collector reported that all save one of the houses liable have paid up.

C. C. Secretary Speaks

Vincent V. Adams, secretary of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce spoke briefly on possible objectives of the association, and asked for Carmel's assistance in putting on the Central Coast counties' "Mission Trails" exhibit for the San Diego fair opening in May.

Other speakers were Mayor James Thoburn, E. H. Ewig, who also read a tribute prepared by F. O. Robbins, who was unable to be present; Forest Paul of Pacific Grove, Don Stanford and Dr. John Gray, who was also celebrating an anniversary, his

Public School Week to Be Observed With Program at Sunset Tuesday

IN connection with the sixteenth annual national observance of Public School Week, beginning April 8, Sunset school is ready with its spring exhibit of work accomplished by the children this year, and with a public program which will be given in the auditorium Tuesday evening at 7:30. After the program patrons will be urged to see exhibits of class work in each class room, art and shop exhibits in the lunch room and a wildflower exhibit in the classroom north of the auditorium. Every pupil in the school will have something on display.

"Public school week," says Principal Otto W. Bardarson, "presents an annual opportunity for teachers to report on their stewardship of the schools directly to the people of the state, who are in fact the owners of the schools. We as educators know that California has developed during the years from pioneer days one of the outstanding school systems of America. Our public schools have withstood the shocks of the depression and have been enabled to provide, thus far, for the vast increase in attendance and the consequent teacher responsibilities forced on us by the economic crisis.

"Only through complete understanding by parents and the public generally of what our modern school system and what its place is in the training of our children for intelligent and patriotic citizenship can our schools hope to maintain their present prestige and continue to meet new problems as they arise."

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week will be visitors' days at Sunset school. Monitors will receive visitors, see that they sign the register and answer questions so that the teacher may continue with the work of the class without interruption.

On the schedule of events for the week are a baseball game between Sunset and Bayview at 4 o'clock Thursday, and a student body meeting Friday morning at 11:20.

Tuesday evening's program, which will be held in the auditorium, will be one of pure entertainment, as well as an opportunity for clarification of educational objectives and expression of mutual interests of

Ash-Can Fire Calls Out Volunteer Brigade

Carmel's dauntless volunteer fire brigade cast one wistful glance at their dinners and then galloped to answer the only fire call of the month last Sunday evening. The excitement centered at San Carlos and Eighth, at Hill's electrical shop. Mr. Hill had set out a can full of hot ashes at the side of the building. Someone else dropped an old rug on the can, the ashes ignited it, and a merry little blaze resulted. There was no damage.

Chief Robert Leidig reports that there has been no loss from fire so far in 1935. Last year at this time fire losses totalled $20,000.

Herrons Celebrate Fourth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Herron of the Viennese dress shop in the Seven Arts Court are celebrating their fourth anniversary, in business and matrimony, by expanding into the next room south of the shop. A big new window, for display purposes, is being opened into the court. Imported things will be shown in the new addition; Mrs. Herron will keep the old shop for her work-room, where she sits, her shoulders wrapped in a bright-flowered peasant shawl, working with infinite precision on the lovely embroideries with which she adorns peasant dresses.

Carmel May Have To Refund Fees Due to Test Case

City of Carmel will probably be under the painful necessity of returning license fees in excess of the regular Carmel business license, paid into the city treasury by firms not having actual headquarters in the village, as the result of Judge Wood's decision in the test case of the Oakland Towel Company, that the double fee paid by outside firms is unconstitutional. This is interpreted as nullifying the second part of Section 27, Ordinance 140, adopted April 12, 1934. City Attorney Argyll Campbell was not present at the hearing, but Judge Wood notified him of the decision in order that he might, if he wished, appeal the case if he thought it advisable. It is not believed that there will be an appeal.

Garden Section May Assist Cliff Planting

Carmel Woman's club's highly active garden section will be asked to assist in the planning and planting of the cliffs on Scenic Drive after the retaining walls and flood-control gutters have been completed. This decision was reached by the SERA project committee, in session Tuesday afternoon. In order that vegetation may play its part in checking storm run-off, it is planned to plant native shrubs at strategic points, and in order to help conceal evidences of man's interference with nature.

Materials have been secured and all is now in readiness to begin the project Monday morning.

WATER CASE PRESENTATION WILL BE WITH BRIEFS

Monterey Peninsula's water rate case before the railroad commission, scheduled for this week, will be presented to the commissioners on briefs rather than by means of a hearing, it was learned here this week. The commission will consider the case on documentary presentation only for the present, though it is understood that there is also to be a hearing later.

New Quarters Needed for Carmel Red Cross

Carmel Red Cross chapter is under the immediate necessity of finding new office quarters. The office which it has been occupying at the corner of Dolores and Seventh is now needed by the owner, and the chapter must move. As the organization is not in position to pay rent, it is looking for some public-spirited citizen which will provide quarters, now vacant, with the understanding they may be used rent free until a pay tenant comes along. As the move must be made Monday, the chapter would like to receive offers at once. As welfare work of the organization will be seriously hampered unless new quarters are found, it is hoped that offers of assistance will be forthcoming immediately. They may be telephined to the Red Cross headquarters or to Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff.

We're Fussy People

YES, we admit we're fussy. That's why we have just installed several thousand dollars worth of the latest laundry equipment—equipment that will be used exclusively for shirt work.

The equipment consists of four presses; one to iron the collar and cuffs; another to iron the bosom; the third press for the body of the shirt and the fourth to iron the sleeves. Then two women go over them by hand to make sure that the shirts go out correct in every detail.

Yes, we're fussy and we'll continue to be fussy about our work, for we appreciate your patronage.

Parade of New Styles at Holman's Draws Women from Over Peninsula

HOLMAN'S craftily chose a perfect spring day, all blue and gold and green, when women's thoughts were sure to have an imperative urge toward spring clothes, for a mannequin parade of the new styles. Result was a conviction that it is going to be more fun to select new things this season that for several years past. There have been fashion shows at which the average woman could not "see herself" in a single thing shown, everything was so obviously designed for youth and streamlines, or spoiled by freakish details. This spring every good idea of the past three or four seasons seemed to have been presrved and enhanced, the poor ones dropped. There is an indefinable something that labels them 1935, perhaps, the elimination of meaningless and exaggerated lines as much as anything else. It is rather a conservative season, but with such a wide variety of cut that the difficult figures will have the pleasure, for a change, of knowing that they will be able to find something kind to their contours.

Optional Skirt Lengths

Skirt lengths seem to be practically optional, meaning that they can be graduated with an eye to the figure as a whole, and adjusted to strike any leg just at the graceful final curve of the calf. Coats are belted, fitted, or swagger, whichever does the most for you; suits are a predominant note, but there is nothing imperative about the type of jacket; it may have a brief peplum, be hip length, finger-tip or longer, so that everyone can find the one which strikes her at the most merciful point. They range all the way from the practical "ensemble" type, frock and coat matching or contrasting, to skirts and blouses, with jacket either matching or contrasting with the skirt. A compromise with the suit idea is the woolen skirt with sweater-blouse top, which are smart enough to serve as afternoon dresses. That great favorite, the jacket frock, is much in evidence.

In the things for street and sports wear, we thought the acme of smartness was achieved in the white trench coat and vagabond hat, with a blood-red scarf. And that reminds us of hats; they are "becoming" again. As one who has firmly refused to buy any more hats until they stopped being silly, we are assured of finding what we want this spring.

Wide Range of Color

As to color, there is a wide range, but Holman's showed green rather predominating. The more neutral colored suits were generally taupe, but always with very bright-hued accessories, particularly red.

One nice note in the afternoon things was the dark blue sheer crepe with touches of white; ultra-conservative, but the sort of thing the really well-dressed Parisienne would go for.

A suggestion of cape, without the discomfort of managing one, was given in a flat-crepe of perriwinkle blue, with a short, split-middle cape converted into flowing sleeves in front.

For the most part, feminine fussiness was shown where it belongs, in intimate wear; negligees, pajamas and negligamas, where lovely fabrics and sheer, delicate colors run riot.

We like the continued perversity of gingham frocks masquerading as evening gowns, particularly the one with the trim white pockets, belt and big color in front and deep decollete behind. Last year's rather tentative experiment in cotton evening frocks has been found good and is carried on with greater certainty; graceful hip lines, frothy swirling skirts, perky sleeves, and a wealth of delicate color.

Juvenile Fashions

Beach wear was much emphasized, with bathing suits now at the irreducible minimum; bandana-pattern sun-suits, with cape to match, and a variety of slacks-and-sweater outfits. Sweaters, by the way, are smartly styled and high-colored.

As for the parade of juvenile fashions, that, now, was something; the impresarios thought of everything possible to do with and for the younger set except serve them up on toast. The crowd liked the very little mannequin who appeared in various outfits, including a pink sunsuit and a dream of a yellow frock. She was attended by her nurse, pranced to the music, took an unselfconscious interest in the crowd and had difficulty in controlling her teddy-bear. One in a fetching pink hood was sent out to steer her own leisurely course; one small lad invariably hurried to get the ordeal over with, even when tricked out in a very smart sand-colored suit; another was obviously awed by his own snowy whiteness. As legs lengthened, came sweaters and skirts like those of the "big girls." There were some nice numbers for the in-between-age girls who are neither flesh nor fowl, emphasizing smart, simple lines. The miniature slacks and sweaters are so much cuter than the big ones, likewise the brief playsuits, but they help to preserve the illusion for grown-up wearers. On the whole, the display of crisp washables and thrilling party frocks made us mourn a wasted youth, wearing our big sisters' hand-me-downs.

PLANT IDENTIFICATION TO BE FLOWER SHOW FEATURE

No longer will the many strange and exotic flowers and plants displayed at California Spring Garden shows be a mystery to show patrons, because at the garden event to be held next month in Oakland, a bureau of plant identification will be established to give plant information to all interested. This was announced by Arthur Navlet, a director of the show which is to be held April 4 to 7, inclusive, at the Oakland exposition building. The plant identification staff will be headed by Harry W. Shepherd, professor of landscape architecture of the University of California.

Work of Sunset Students More Mature Than Most Grade School Art

By THELMA B. MILLER

AFTER staring in helpless fascination at the heads and figures, representative of seventh graders' art work, currently on exhibition in the art room at Sunset school, we were inspired with an immense curiosity to see more of the product of school boys and girls, studying elementary art in a village dedicated to the arts. We went down one Thursday afternoon, when Miss Anna Marie Baer, the instructor, was pretty busy with her regular bi-weekly class, but not too busy to let us browse among the folios in the store-room. She said if we would wait a few weeks it would all be displayed to much better advantage in the annual exhibition for Public School Week, but we were in a lather to see more, and said we couldn't wait.

Tremendous Advances

Everyone who follows the schools at all realizes that there have been tremendous advances in the teaching of art in the last few years, but that does not explain the quality of the work done by the sixth, seventh and eighth graders at Sunset school. Some other factor is at work; either there is an unusually gifted group of pupils, or living in a place where people are more than usually conscious and appreciative stimulates even at this early age, or Miss Baer has succeeded where other art teachers fail in arousing the creative imagination of her pupils. Probably all three factors contribute to turning out products which are remarkably promising. No, they are more than promising, the work of some of the eighth graders represents achievement; work that is significant in itself, which represents perhaps a new art "school." It has, superficially, elements in common with the adult "modern art" exponents, but it has a youthful freshness and zest which can be captured only at an early, unawakened stage.

Even the work of the younger children seems peculiarly free from triteness, or the messyness which accompanies so many juvenile art attempts. Presumably, however, only the best products have been saved for the art department archives. The younger children are on the way, but their work has not yet crystallized in the clear balanced compositons of the eighth graders.

Free of Triteness

The value of the work is in that it is creative, not copied. "Teachers have only recently realized," says Miss Baer, "the extent to which children are capable of creative work." Their other school subjects, and factors of their daily life, furnish the material from which lively imaginations spin their own compositions. The influence of the funny papers and the movies are not negligible, but they are influences only, not direct models. These latter elements have given direction to childish humor, have indicated a tongue-in-cheek approach to life which in a less sophisticated era youngsters would not have. But under the thin veneer of sophistication, which, after all, is a valid interpretation of their environment and this age, a requisite of authentic art, is a purely childish fancifulness and response to beauty that only childhood can produce.

Color crayons have developed into an authentic art medium in the hands of Sunset pupils. Yes, those same crayons with which little children love to make messy scrawls, and even to chew up and scatter under foot. But what a difference, in the hands of skilled eighth graders! The smooth color and clear drawing which can be achieved in this medium might well tempt established artists to experiment with it.

We thought the series of history studies done by the eighth graders the most interesting in the school art collection, and these will be properly displayed during School Week, April 8. There are half a dozen of them we would like to own. No one explained them to us, for the most part they are self-explanatory; some of them are rather abstract, but they carry more conviction of essential meaning than the work of some of the grown-up abstractionists.

Galley Slaves

There is one of a group of Negroes, in what, from the apprehensiveness of their faces and the lowering gloom of their surroundings, can only be the hold of a slave-ship. This is another, a grouping of Indians and traders, in which the conflicting cupidity of the two groups is disclosed in inimitable facial expression. There is a covered-wagon group which rivals "American Gothic" for the revealing of character in the faces of the hard-bitten pioneer man and woman. Peeping from the wagon are two little girls, one sweet and pensive; the other a red-headed doxie if ever there was one. Two fat roguish oxen are pulling the wagon, rolling their eyes engagingly, and a black-bearded optimist, following the wagon on foot, appears about to burst into "O Suzanna" at the very least.

Another "mural" shows an immigrant family gazing, with hope eloquently imprinted upon their figures —the faces are turned away—against a styalized study of the New York sky-line. There is a group of factory workers against a magnificently composed art-moderne background. All of these, except the slave-hold one, are highly colored, and not just in primary tones. The students have found a way to blend crayons so as greatly to increase the possible range of colors. In taupe and blue-greens only is one study of the "forest primeval" showing the deer, turkeys, and a fabulous beast or two, that the original settlers found in the new world.

We would like to see some of these large studies sent to a big art exhibition somewhere. Carmel art gallery could do worse than devote one of the monthly displays to the work of Sunset school.

Would Make Santa Cruz County Seat for Peninsula Area

Monterey county would be included with Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, and San Benito counties in a consolidation of California's 58 counties into 15 as proposed in a constitutional amendment which was before the state assembly this week after being introduced by Assemblyman Wagner of Alameda.

Santa Cruz county was designated as the proposed county seat for the group including Monterey county.

Still Has Faith In Immunization

Although one of the two dogs which Miss Gwendolyn Stearns had immunized against rabies several months ago has since contracted the disease and died of it, this fact has not destroyed her faith in the effectiveness of innoculation as locally practised. She expressed herself as regretting greatly that the fact had been made public. Believing that this dog may have represented a complete deviation from normal reaction, she felt that this exceptional case might be capitalized by elements wishing to discredit the innoculation program, and wished that she might have been consulted before the matter was made public in council meeting.

"It is probable," she said, "that my dog had been bitten before he was innoculated, and that the incubation period in his case was exceptionally prolonged. My other dog, which was immunized at the same time is confined under observation, but has shown no abnormal symptoms."

The dog died two months after innoculation and an examination of the head at U. C. showed positive indication of rabies.

Magician Makes Hit at Gallery

"Francisco," who put on the magic show at Denny-Watrous Gallery Saturday evening, carried on the good old traditions of an age-old art, including a number of tricks that one knows must be illusions, but even the most exasperating know-it-alls cannot satisfactorily explain. Some of them depend on manual dexterity, others are a matter of elaborate equipment, but however the tricks are done, most of us like to become children again in the presence of a magician, sharing their wide-eyed enjoyment, and not too curious as to the technique.

Most remarkable were Francisco's version of the "escape" trick which Houdini immortalized. Even accepting the fact that it is all a trick, the speed with which, in the final stunt, the magician substituted himself for his assistant in the locked mail-bag, inside the locked trunk, baffles explanation. The skill, timing and coordination required for successful manipulation of the magician's equipment is a perennial marvel; it requires a certain innate ability as well as long practise.

Most amusing to the audience was the egg trick, an invention of Thurston's if we remember rightly. This involves the assistance of two children from the audience. One draws an illimitable supply of egs from a hat, handing them to the other child. Uusually the child on the receiving end begins to laugh helplessly and spatter eggs about. Adeline Guth showed such cool self-possession and such an enormous capacity for storing eggs that she only dropped two or three.

In case any one wants to know, the cow-boy hat that young Tom Brown loaned the magician near the beginning of the show was not a prop hat, but the same one that Tom wears on every possible occasion, either with or without the horse that completes the costume.

Readers' Reaction

"FURIOUSLY TO THINK"

Editor The Carmel Pine Cone:

I read with much interest Bernard Rowntree's expositon of the creed of the Quakers, given because he had heard that his candidacy for police and fire commissioner had been objected to on account of his faith. Such a notion gives one "furiously to think." What could be the reason which would make a Quaker be suspected in the line of a duty he had voluntarily undertaken? I set myself to try and find out what this could be; for I realized that had he been, say a Methodist or Baptist, he would, in theory be as much committed to The Golden Rule and the Ten Commandments as a Quaker is.

So I was about to give up this line of thought, when it occurred to me that Methodists and Baptists went to war—and Quakers didn't. It dawned upon my slow intelligence, that this might be the cause of the amount of "stalling" which has been done, all these weeks, in spite of numerously signed petitions asking for his immediate appointment. Trying again to be logical, I then asked myself what body of organized opinion would be quietly bringing pressure upon the mayor to withstand the popular demand. Who might want a police head who would have no scruples against "cracking down" on any one who honestly held other views than theirs. And I found my answer. Can your readers guess also? If you can, try and get action. For this is your problem, too.

AN INTERESTED ON-LOOKER.

ANOTHER MONUMENT

Editor The Carmel Pine Cone:

Why not have more and taller monuments for our coast line such as the one proposed for the commemoration of the discovery of Monterey Bay by Cabrillo? And why make them only 250 feet high? Why not 500, or a thousand while we are about it?

Let's erect one on top of one of those pinnacles at the extremity of Point Lobos, and another, say, on Point Sur. It would relieve the monotony of the central California coast. Nature is so uninteresting hereabouts, you know, a little decoration is needed, especially of such an architectural variety as the Cabrillo column, which would harmonize so well with the towering metropolitan type prevalent in the region. Our promontories, like the nose of the man on the street, would scarcely be noticed but for the warts that might develop there. And what we need are tourists to gape at such excresences.

LOCAL ENTHUSIAST.

WHY NOT POINT LOBOS?

Editor Carmel Pine Cone:

I am so disappointed. I have just heard that the Cabrillo monument is to be built in Pacific Grove and NOT on Point Lobos.

Can you help us? Surely the artistic shores of Carmel are more appropriate than the commercial shores of Pacific Grove?

Surely the artists can get together and have this monument erected where true beauty is appreciated. Please help.

A. OLLIRBAC.

PROPHECY COMING TRUE

Editor The Carmel Pine Cone:

An editorial in the Peninsula Weekly News of March 29 reads, "Do you know that IF a Utility District is formed its officers can, without your say-so, endeavor to own and operate the following businesses which the law SPECIFICALLY sets out as legal for it to own and operate? Light, water, heat, transportation, telephone, garbage, sewage, refuse matter."

The writer of the above stayed just inside the bounds of truth by the insertion of the words, "endeavor to" which can be easily overlooked and the omission of which entirely changes the meaning.

The editorial goes on, "Do you know that IF a Utility District is formed, the directors of the district can and will, levy and collect taxes to carry on its operations? There is no limit to the amount of such taxes except your ABILITY to pay (not unwillingness to pay)."

I have not heard that our courts of law have lost their power to issue injunctions to stop proceedings that are detrimental to the public welfare.

In your editorial of March 1 you commented on "the all-too-human preference to believe fantastic nonsense rather than cold facts" and "the lamentable tendency of human beings to prefer to believe fiction rather than pursue facts."

Your prophesy is coming true.

BERNARD ROWNTREE.

Famous Viola D'Amore Artist Here Tomorrow

Alix Young Maruchess, famous artist of the viola and viola d'amore, offers a great musical treat when she plays in the Denny-Watrous Gallery tomorrow evening, April 6, with Carolyn Jordan at the piano.

Mme. Maruchess has played as viola d'amore soloist with the Manhattan symphony orchestra, New York, for the Coolidge festival in Washington, D. C., and throughout the country as solo artist.

In her program Saturday Mme. Maruchess will play works dating back to the early seventeenth century.

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, Mme. Maruchess will give a special program of music—a half-hour—for the children, with admission only ten cents. This children's hour, which the Denny-Watrous Gallery is providing on Saturday afternoons, is one of the most important features in Carmel educational advantages.

Tomorrow night's program follows: for viola: "Komm, susser Tod" (Bach); "Apres un Reve" (Faure); Tow Old French Dances (Marais); for viola d'amore: "Suite en Re" (Marc); "La Romanesca", "Pastorale" (Rust); "Plaisir d'amour" (Martini); "Minuet" (Milandre); "Tambourin" (Gossec); for viola: "Meditation Hebraique" (Bloch); "The Maja and the Nightingale" (Granados); "Capitan Fracassa" (Castelnuovo-Tedesca).

CLARK BRUCE BATTLES DUST STORMS IN MIDDLE WEST

Battling the winds and dust storms of the middle west, Clark Bruce has returned to Carmel with a new car which he purchased in the east and drove across the continent. While on a tour of the east, Mr. Bruce visited many interesting cities, but ran into difficulties in Kansas where the dust was so bad that he could not navigate his car and at one place had to pay $55 to have his car towed.

Del Monte Radio Broadcast Soon

Staring Saturday night, April 20, Bob Kinney and his Hotel Del Monte dance orchestra will broadcast twice a week over the Columbia-Don Lee Pacific Coast network, it was announced today.

The programs will originate in the Bali Room and will be sent to San Francisco by remote control, where they will be released through KFRC and stations associated with the Columbia network.

Dance music, however, will not be the only feature to go on the air. As the result of the installation of the lines on the Monterey peninsula, golf championships, polo games and other important sport events will be broadcast from time to time as they take place.

For the inauguration of the first broadcast on Saturday night, April 20, a special program will be presented together with Bob Kinney's orchestra. Several well known radio stars will take part and Harrison Holliway will act as master of ceremonies. The program will be released between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock.

New Hats for Easter Costume

No spring outfit is completed without a stylish new hat to set off the whole attire. Hats are also one of the integral parts of a costume that can spoil the whole general effect if they do not suit the personality of the person and set off the clothes.

Barney-Briggs hats are designed to give the truly personal touch and there is such a choice at this smart shop in Pacific Grove that one can not go wrong. To be comfortable a hat must fit, therefore Barney-Briggs carries both small and large sizes.

Penha and Linsley Recital on May 12

Carmelites are much interested to learn that a piano-cello recital by Michel Penha and Ralph Linsley, two members of the fine Penha Quartet, memories of which will always leave a warm glow in the hearts of villagers, will be given here on Sunday, May 12. The program will be given at the Greene studio at 3:30 in the afternoon, repeated at 8:30 in the evening. It will consist of sonatas for the two instruments, by Brahms, Beethoven and Grieg.

Mr. Penha and Mr. Linsley have both been in Los Angeles this winter, the cellist working with a privately endowed trio, the pianist doing general ensemble work and accompanying. The old quartet has been getting together occasionally for practice and for old times' sake. Mr. Linsley is returning to Los Angeles at the end of this week, after a fortnight here, staying with Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Reynolds at the Highlands.

Caters To Needs of Carmelites and Visitors

The new Spring and Easter outfit has received special attention in recent purchases from the metropolitan style centers, Miss Janet Prentiss, owner of The Cinderella Shop, says.

"We have made it a point to consider the special desires of the Carmelite, while maintaining due consideration for the wishes of the city visitor," she says, "and we believe that our displays are sufficiently varied to meet the wishes of nearly every woman of taste."

Children's Clothes for Easter Offer Variety

That even children are awake to the joy of proper and tasteful dress is Bee Baker's reason for careful selection of new children's clothes for Easter and spring.

She is featuring personally selected dresses in dotted Swiss, organdies, and voiles in sizes from 1 to 14, and one line in which Mrs. Baker takes special pride is the "Picture Mode" group of dresses made by a noted Hollywood designer specializing in clothes for baby movie stars.

Library to Close Sunday Evenings Is Latest Ruling

Sunday evening hours have been discontinued at the Carmel Library. It was found that very few people used the library at this hour, in spite of many requests for Sunday hours, and the service to the public did not warrant the expenditure.

Beginning with April 1, strict rules concerning fines will be enforced. No borrower will be allowed to take out books as long as an unpaid fine remains on his card. No books will be issued to any member of a family owing fines.

Evening Dress Display Is Timely for Easter

A special display of evening dresses is being featured by the Irene Lucien shop just now, supplementing the showing of new outfits and hats especially designed for late spring, summer, and the Easter season.

This announcement was made today by Edith Smythe and Helene Vye, owners of the shop which recently moved to a spot on Ocean avenue just south of Dolores, which location was chosen for the sake of more space, better display, and greater convenience to customers, according to Miss Smythe.

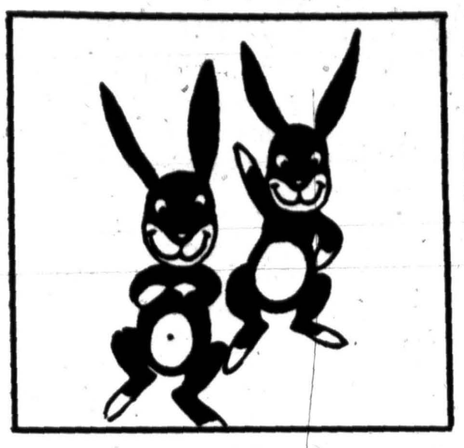
EASTER'S PARADE WILL SOON BEGIN



Men Should Think of Easter Dolling Up

New Easter outfits are not all for women. Charmak & Chandler clothing store is telling men that they, too, should think of Easter and new clothes.

At present they are showing a new line of spring suits from Charter House which is very complete in most shades, patterns and sizes.

And to go along with new suits they are advocating smart styles in shirts, slacks, and neckwear with all the accessories.

Charmak and Chandler are inviting men to drop in and browse around, take their time and select something that is really suitable. It is their contention that men do not spend enough time with their clothes and too often let someone else rush them into buying the first thing that they try on.

"A little time in the shop saves a lot of discontent after one gets home," says Gail Chandler, manager of the store.

Sport Dresses Right for Most Any Wear

"It is certainly not too early to start looking over the spring styles in sport dresses," says Bee Brenner, owner of La Mode Sport shop in Monterey. "Sport dresses are going to be most popular this season for almost every activity." The "shop early" warnings are out now, as more and more people are selecting while there are large stocks.

"The new silk prints, piques and linens are especially popular, and are most reasonable," declares Miss Brenner.

La Mode Sport Shop has long been known as one of the leaders in woman's styles and has a large stock of almost every kind of feminine garment.

Staff Is Increased at La Bonita Beauty Shop

With the idea of aiding every woman to look her loveliest at Easter time, La Bonita Beauty shop has this week increased its staff of operators in order to accommodate the customers more speedily. No woman need be turned away because she can not get appointments.

La Bonita Beauty shop is up-to-date in its equipment and the operators are expert in creating the season's latest styles, says Eva Adcock, proprietor.

New Packard Now in Semi-Low Price Field

Packard has entered the semi-low price field with a new car, smaller, more compact; yet a car which is said to embody all of the features of quality contained in the larger machine. The new car is known as the "Packard 120" and is pronounced the most outstanding achievement of 1935 engineering, according to William Stahl, owner of the Stahl Motor Company of Monterey.

The layman cannot be technical, but the layman is the man who buys, and a layman who recently rode in the new Packard 120 reports without reserve: "The Packard 120 has every riding quality, every refinement of beauty, and every improvement in appointment of the most expensive cars. It is a car that is thrilling to ride in or to drive, and it is simply unbelievable that such a car can be sold for so little.

Boy Scouts Form Separate District

A separate district, corresponding with Sunset school district, will be formed at once for Carmel Boy Scouts. This action, recommended by Herman Crossman, was decided upon at a meeting of scout troop committeemen and leaders held Wednesday afternoon. Al Young, Scout executive, expressed approval of this action, and explained the new duties which would devolve on leaders in conducting their own district.

Reporting on the status of the various troops, Scout leaders noted a general pick-up and progress, and declared particularly noteworthy the accomplishments and enthusiasm of the Sea Scouts.

Immediate need for additional scout leaders was discussed, and a plan announced for a training course for scout masters to be inaugurated in the near future. A Sea Scout regatta was proposed by Ranald Cockburn. Scout summer camp plans were discussed; attendance will cost the boys only $1.40 per week.

Leslie Team Winner In Sunset Baseball

By BARBARA BRYANT

George Crossman and Edgar Leslie, Team 6 and Team 2, played baseball at Sunset Thursday, March 21 and the score was 11 to 18 in Leslie's favor. Pat Crichton made an out first thing on Crossman's team. George Crossman fanned out, making two outs in succession. Laurence Leidig made a great hit into a tree which he followed by making a home run. Quite a boy! Laurence Leidig and Orville Jones made two runs.

Max Hagemyer, on Edgar Leslie's team, made a home run. Baird Bardarson ran two bases, was almost put out on both, but the basemen dropped the ball. The umpire asked a certain person who was umpiring the game. This certain person seemed to be inclined towards running the whole works. Gordon made a run. Martin Artellan made an out. Bob Morton hit a fly caught by John Wood. Roy Jiminez hit another fly. There were no runs.

John Wood made a run. He was doing fine throughout the game. Frank Hayford hit one over the fence. "Wotta Man!" Max hit the ball so hard he nearly knocked the umpire down. Pat Crichton hit a good one, got to third base. Laurence Leidig, Pat Crichton and Billy McDermed made runs.

Baird Bardarson made an out. Max Hagemeyer brought two men in. Laurence Leidig missed a fly hit by John Wood. Is he good?

Thorne Kinsey out on first, Billy McDermed out on first, two in succession. George Prossman hit a fly. There was one run, by Bob Morton.

Dany Villapando hit a homerun. Three outs followed in a comparatively short time and that concluded the game.

50-Cent Clinic Again Tomorrow

Much encouraged by the extent to which local people have taken advantage of the series of 50-cent clinics for immunization of cats and dogs against rabies, city officials have announced that the innoculation service will be extended again tomorrow at the fire house from noon until 6 o'clock. Mayor Thoburn expressed satisfaction that Carmelites are cooperating so willingly in the effort to immunize all pets voluntarily. It is now felt that a resolution requiring compulsory immunization will not work a hardship on anyone, as apparently only those who do not intend to cooperate are holding back.

At the clinic last Saturday 63 animals were immunized and since the last report 39 have been taken to veterinarians from Carmel. The county health department showed a total of 647 cats and dogs in Carmel. To date 386 dogs have been innoculated, 129 cats, making 515 in all. The department figures that 91 dogs, 41 cats are still to be treated.

Leon W. Narvaez Dies of Pneumonia

Leon W. Narvaez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon P. Narvaez of San Carlos street, died at a peninsula hospital Saturday, of pneumonia. Born 39 years ago in Monterey, where the family resided before coming to Carmel in 1906, he was a descendant of old California families, the Narvaez line having been established in the state for seven generations, his mother's family for six generations. Richard Henry Dana, author of "Two Years Before the Mast," who married into the Carillo family of Santa Barbara, was a cousin of young Narvaez' grandfather; he was a great-grandson of General Castro against whom Col. John Fremont fought and family tradition has it that a Narvaez came to these shores with Father Serra.

Rosary service was read at Freeman's Mortuary Monday, followed by requiem mass Tuesday at Carmel Mission, and burial at the Monterey Catholic cemetery.

Besides his parents, the deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Narvaez, and three children, Ramon, Donicia and Donicio, twins, residing on Viscaino street; two sisters, Mrs. Amos Dana of Nipomo, Mrs. Thomas Brosnan of Carmel, and a brother, Louis Narvaez of Carmel Highlands. He was a member of Carmel post of the American Legion.

Among relatives from out of town who attended the funeral services were Mr. and Mrs. Emile Fuchs of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin Dana, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Sheehy, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dana, Amos Dana, Mrs. Manuela Dana, and Mrs. Cypriana Dana, all of Nipomo.

Apricot Trees Bloom In Santa Clara Valley

The apricot blossoms in the Santa Clara valley are now at their height, reports the San Jose office of the National Automobile Club. Motorists driving through that region are surrounded with scenes of unusual beauty. The foothills of Los Gatos command sweeping views of the verdant valley; while from the valley, one may look up to the softly curving hills covered with blossoming orchards.

GIVING the members of the Pacific Grove High School French class an excellent opportunity to parade their "French accents," Miss Gardner, who daily bares to them the mysteries of that language, was hostess at a delightful dinner recently.

"Six Characters in Search of An Author" to Open Next Thursday

ON Thursday evening next, April 11, at 8:30, the curtain of the Denny-Watrous Gallery will go up on the first act of the violently-argued "Six Characters in Search of An Author," which Beverly Wright is directing, and an all-local cast of surprising talent acting.

Those who have seen rehearsals say that "Gene" Watson, as the Father, is doing the finest piece of work yet, which means something, for this veteran actor of "Hedda Gabler," "Liliom" and literally a dozen other Carmel productions has always carried off honors. Maud Clifton Carroll, who plays the Mother, is said to be going to surprise everyone. A voice of poignant, moving pathos, together with a remote desolation of spirit make the part of the Mother very convincing.

Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author" takes place on an unset stage, where a stock company is assembled to rehearse a play. The company director, played admirably by "Billy" Shepherd, starts the rehearsal with the more or less brutal command of the conventional "hardboiled" commercial director. Then enter the six characters, who announce themselves as the uncompleted and unrealized conception of an author's imagination, seeking their reality in the author who will bring them to life in a play. These fantastic characters, who exist and have their only reality in the drama itself, then enact their lives which have almost an epic grandeur in the predestined horror and tragedy of the role and situation which the brain of an author has conceived for them.

The play in the hands of so great a master as Pirandello, whom contemporary criticism is rating an "immortal," has a little of the style of "Strange Interlude" in it, inasmuch as each of the six characters recoils in anguish at the impossibility of conveying to anyone else his own innner thoughts and motives for the action which so revolts.

A few lines from Pirandello himself are interesting as to his meaning: "I see, as it were, a labyrinth where our soul wanders through countless conflicting paths without ever finding a way out. In this labyrinth I see a two-headed Hermes which with one face laughs and with the other weeps. It laughs with one face at the other face's weeping." These lines may explain the character of the step-daughter in the "Six Characters"—a harlot one moment, and a tender, loving sister of the baby sister another moment.

The baby, by the way, is played by beautiful four-year-old Isabella Moltni, daughter of a Mexican mother and an Italian father.

A recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Orrick at Pebble Beach was Miss Claire Faitoute, who has been visiting friends in Piedmont.

Building Plans Vie With Spring Verse and Garden Musings at Club

CONSIDERATION of many problems presented by the project of building a club home occupied the members of Carmel Woman's club at the monthly general session Monday afternoon, instead of the program which the garden section was scheduled to present at this time. After the lengthy business meeting the section chairman, Mrs. E. H. Yocum, called upon a number of her members for brief readings, which brought spring verse and garden musings from Miss Anne Grant, Miss Agnes Knight, Mrs. C. M. Matthews, Miss Agnes Ford and Miss Elizabeth Mascord.

George P. Ross, attorney who assisted the club in filing papers of incorporation, appeared to answer questions regarding this step. He explained briefly that since 1931 changes in the state law have been effected by which individual members cannot be held responsible for the debts of a corporation; the physical assets of the corporation alone assuming all liability. A non-profit corporation, such as the Woman's club has now become, is one of the simplest organizations possible to form, the attorney said.

Up to Council

Mrs. Harry S. Nye, club president and chairman of the building committee, told the club that "it all depends on the council now." If the club's petition for rezoning of the property at Ninth and Dolores, proposed building site, is successful, the building committee will proceed with the purchase of a lot and a half, and erection of the simple building for which plans have been drawn. Total expenditure for land, building and furniture, Mrs. Nye said, will not exceed $4000. This money is all "in sight," except several hundred dollars which will be made up by voluntary contributions from club members.

As disclosed in the plan, the club building will consist only of the assembly room, 30 by 45 feet, a kitchen and dressing room. Although the lot faces west, the entrance will be at the south side, away from the ocean winds, and a large southern window will admit ample sun. At one end of the room will be a large red-brick fireplace, about which a table and easy chairs will be grouped for use of committees and informal gatherings.

To Prepare Slate

Looking toward the annual election of the board of directors, a nominating committee was appointed to prepare a slate of 14 names for presentation at the May meeting. Under the corporation rules now governing the club, the board will then elect officers, chairman of the board becoming president of the club. Mrs. Willis G. White is chairman of the nominating committee, and from a list of 13 names, she chose the following committee: Mrs. Mable Turner, Mrs. Clara L. Bellar, Mrs. Calvert Meade, Mrs. C. M. Matthews.

Tea was served at the close of the afternoon, from tables centered with huge bowls of daffodils in a variety of shades and shapes.

HERE'S A THOUGHT!

When you're sloppy you can't feel as gay,
As when dressed in a much nicer way.
Fancy frills you wont need,
But clean clothes are indeed,
A requisite need of today.

"REMEMBER WHO YOU ARE,"---MR. BASSETT

DEAR MR. BASSETT:

It is probably difficult for you to understand newspaper people who, unlike you, do not have the Messiah complex. It is probably inconceivable to you that any man owning his own newspaper should be in a position actually of not giving a damn about "moulding public opinion"; should find it much more worth while to watch, as an interested spectator, the unfolding of events and report them as accurately and truthfully as may be.

One trouble in the way of fulminating, as you love to do, is that full possession of all the facts often completely robs an editor of his ammunition. That, we suppose, is why you generally collect enough facts to provide confirmation of your personal opinions, and then deliver a blast calculated to bolster your own position. We contend that this is egotism of the most egregious type, not good journalism. Though Mr. Hearst is one of your pet hates, you follow his tactics exactly.

We are newcomers to Carmel, Mr. Bassett. We do not represent, any more than you do, the "real Carmel," which had its beginnings long before either of us appeared on the scene, and has developed into something far too complex to be summed up in the editorial pages of any little weekly, in any given week. In the course of time, something of the "real Carmel" will emerge in the pages of any representative paper which gives thoughtful attention to wide coverage of local news. If we occasionally look beyond our portals, even unto Abyssinia, it is because we know that there are others in Carmel, who like us, occasionally take thought as to what of interest is going on in the outside world.

You complain indignantly that The Pine Cone is commercial, that it looks like a "shopping news." In response to the latter we will say, Mr. Bassett, that is not our fault but your misfortune that advertisers prefer The Pine Cone. We are commercial; of course we are, not being in the fortunate position of living on inherited wealth or having an angel. The editor of The Pine Cone resigned a good position and came to Carmel, quite aware of the fact that he was accepting a reduced income in exchange for the privilege of living and working in a beautiful and inspiring community.

Having failed to be disillusioned in our belief that Carmel is a beautiful and inspiring place to live, we have not been in a mood to tear about looking for things to attack. Carmel is not perfect, neither is the world, but we have always managed to make a pretty friendly and comfortable adjustment to our environment. It's a matter of glands, or something.

When we have lived long enough in Carmel to feel that we have the right to regulate the affairs of Carmel, and if and when we see situations seriously in need of correction, and accessible to editorial suggestion, we will see what we can do about it. In the meantime, we regard you as one of the things wrong with Carmel, that is why we are going out of our way to tell you so. We disapprove of the fact that you are often guilty of sloppy reporting; that you do not sufficiently familiarize yourself with the backgrounds of either your news stories or your editorials. When you copy stories out of The Monterey Peninsula Herald you do not take the trouble to correct initials or spelling of names. In discussing the payment of $25 to The Sun for publication of the utility district report, you appeared to confuse it in some way with the mass meeting at Pine Inn. You appeared to be under the impression, a few weeks ago, that John Catlin desired the split in the commissionerships which Mayor Thoburn proposed. In making considerable to-do over the art gallery sidewalk, you appear unaware that the beach erosion project has already been approved by SERA, and that the sidewalk could not possibly be included in the same project. Incidentally, The Pine Cone began agitation for the art gallery sidewalk about 10 months ago, before you returned to Carmel. You create the impression, because you write with force and invective, that you know much more about what is going on than you actually do.

This week's meeting of the Woman's club, in which you take an inaccurate and unsolicited interest, was held not Tuesday evening, but Monday afternoon.

People who knew you when you were in Carmel before, say that you have become embittered in the interval, presumably because the world has not recognized your self-appointed mission to set it right. At present, Carmel is not taking very seriously your corrective efforts. If you continue in your present course, you may create a reaction which will strengthen the very things you attack, just as your more radical fulminations produce a violent, and possibly unwholesome, conservative reaction in many of your readers. Thus is inhibited a wholesome evolutionary process toward greater liberalism in Carmel.

BUILDING ROCK WALLS

Carmel has avoided that lamentable spectacle which has attended so much public relief work, large gangs of men standing around with nothing to do, by delaying until materials were at hand and adequate supervision secured, the beginning of the beach erosion SERA project. In a few days the work will be under way. It is understood that 50 men are to be assigned here. Just how 50 men can work efficiently on this comparatively small project is a problem perturbing to the village. It is probable, however, that under the "stagger system" they will not all be on the job at once.

Meanwhile Carmel will wait with considerable anxiety to see how this reclamation project is going to look. The rawness of new rock-work is always disconcerting. For a year or so the sight of the retaining walls will inevitably be a bit of a shock. We trust that time and nature will eventually harmonize them with their surroundings more successfully than in the case of the double row of white garbage cans at the beach end of Ocean avenue which serve an indefinite purpose with very definite unsuitability.

The beautiful cliffs along Scenic Drive will lose something of their charm by being altered by man, no matter how skillfully. Scenic Drive has already lost much of its primitive character through the upbuilding of urban "mansions," relic of boom times. Unfortunately, something must be done, for Nature is inexorably leveling the cliffs. It is work that must have artistic insight and careful though for the future. If the erosion control work appears too drastically out of character as it proceeds, some protest should be uttered before it is too late.

Correct this sentence: "Gentleman, I appreciate your asking me for advice but, to tell you the truth, I don't know any more than you do."

CARMEL

I hear the call of the wayward sea,
A crescent moon and a wind-swept tree
With gypsy tides where wolf-waves grope,
And lap the sands far beyond our scope;
The bathing stars, and the wind-flung spray,
Where sea-gulls cry like the wild blue-jay.

—GEORGIA LOCKWOOD.

MOON-WITCHED

I trace a picture, fill my pen with light,
O Genie Muse! . . . The rifles of a bay,
Each wave the spangle of a watery fay,
Tumbling and laughing in a moon-witched night.
Then, just beyond, a hilly island's height,
Ghost-capped, and with a hood of silver gray
On phantom shoulders, reaching where the spray
Flings wizard veils on sands of elfin white.

Aladdin rubbed his lamp! Else could the moon
Have spilled enchantment on the salty bar,
The ermine foam, the heavens blue and far,
All trembling in one universal tune!
His sly jinni has flit from dune to dune;
His magic ring is shining in that star!

—DOUGLAS V. KANE.

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

A BROWN brindled cat trotted briskly across Ocean avenue the other day, with the air of one who knew just where she was going, and why. She was after a drink of water, and she let slow drops from the hydrant in one of the center shrubbery beds fall on her tongue. Most people know that dogs need lots of water, but seem to regard cats as a species of camel. Cats which have only casual homes often have great difficulty in finding water. This is just a gentle reminder to people who sometimes set out scraps for a "neighborhood cat";—an occasional dish of water is acceptable too. We hope that in houses where Puss is a member of the family someone remembers to replenish her water dish daily, for she drinks a lot.

* * *

CARMELITES were gratified last week to see that Pal is back. He doesn't say where he has been, but there were several weeks when the fat, smiling mongrel was missing from his customary haunts. He always showed up pretty regularly at Normandy Inn around meal-times, but during his unexplained absence he missed even this daily call. He is just as busy as ever about his own mysterious affairs, which cause him to lumber along at a slow canter with a preoccupied expression on his ridiculous face, but from his tendency to pause for greetings with old friends, he shows his own realization that he hasn't been around lately.

* * *

GEORGE DAVIES was in town at the end of the week with his tiny Yorkshire terrier, the smallest yet. He dropped in to compare notes with Mrs. Fraser at the Yarn Shop, and to see whose Yorkshire was the smallest. His is blue and gold, which he says are "the" colors for Yorkshires. She was turned out for a romp with The Pine Cone Pekinese, who was a little too rough for her. When Mr. Davies expounded on the superiority of all Yorkshires over all Pekinese, you should have heard the editorial outcry. Mr. Davies has a large ranch near Los Gatos devoted mostly to a miscellaneous family of pets, including peacocks which wait on the steps for him to come out and talk to them.

* * *

UP Carmel Valley at the Valleyfield Kennels they raise that strangest member of the canine family, the Kerry Blue terrier. He is a stout gun-metal colored beastie, with silky, wavy fur and a mop of hair over his eyes. We had one once, which experts admitted was an "eccentric," even for this queer breed. He was embarrasingly devoted, flew into hysterics if not allowed to shadow my every footstep, and was absolutely incorrigible. He was the only dog I ever knew that would argue. Knowing perfectly well what I wanted him to do, he would plant himself stubbornly and make an issue of everything. He was a ferocious fighter, could lick anything on four feet provided it wasn't more than half his size. I used to talk long and earnestly about his unsporting tactics, to his exasperation. "But my good woman," his manner implied, "can't you get it through your head that the little dogs are so much easier to lick?"

On my shelf is a book entitled, "The Popular Kerry Blue Terrier." I never see it without involuntarily answering, "Popular with whom?" He certainly wasn't popular with my neighbors.

RECORD SHOOTING WILL START FRIDAY AT PRESIDIO

Record shooting of the Monterey Peninsula Rifle club will start at the Monterey Presidio range Sunday at the usual shooting hour. These record shooting events will take place each Sunday in April and will climax the season's practice days of the club.

These record events will conclude shooting for the season, but those inveterate trigger pullers of the group who cannot lay off may take advantage of the Del Monte Gun club range for additional practice at any time during the summer months.

Were, "Boy, this burns me up!"

Sunshine and Rain Staging Marathon

With the accommodating habit of raining at night and clearing up by day, Carmel's weather has shown extreme variety during the past week. Beautiful balmy days, one day of low fog—the first in months — showers at night and one night of heavy rain, generally mild temperatures, have contributed to a kaleidoscope of weather.

This season will go down in history as exceptionally and beneficially wet. Total rainfall to April 4 is 21.38 inches. The average is around 16 inches; 20 inches is a "wet year"; anything more is unusual, not to say spectacular.

Heaviest rain this week was Tuesday night, which, with showers Wednesday morning, registered a precipitation of 1.25. Wednesday night's rain totalled only about .4 of an inch.

Bruce Lockhart Book Reviewed

"Retreat from Glory," in which Bruce Lockhart continues the pungent recital of episodes in his own career, which he began in the widely read "British Agent," was reviewed for the Woman's Club book section Wednesday morning by Mrs. E. J. Turkington. The reviewer's conclusion was that this is "real literature," as witty as British Agent but more artistically done. Its material on the central European states since the world war is invaluable. She expects to hear more from this writer, now only 46 years of age, whose life has been interwoven with the warp and woof of twentieth century history. Now connected with a London newspaper, Mrs. Turkington believes he has found his real forte in journalism.

Lockhart is a Scotsman, for a number of years in the British diplomatic service. In the first volume he told of the Russian revolution through which he lived as consul general at Moscow, and his later perilous mission as agent for the British government, which gave him contacts with the leaders of the revolution but led to his arrest on suspicion of being a spy.

In "Retreat from Glory" he furthers his ambition to become the best-informed man in Europe on central European affairs as consul in Prague, the beautiful old capital of Czechoslovakia. In financial difficulties because of his taste for high living, he resigned from the service and went into the banking field in Vienna, and later in Zagreb. Punctuated by various nervous breakdowns, which gave him chances to study intensively the history and folk-ways of the places he visited in convalescence, he showed himself to be one of those brilliant people to whom all life's experiences are grist for his own particular mill.

Publisher Pays Speeding Fine

Cobwebs gathered on the big book in which Judge Wood records the misdeeds of traffic violators for a number of weeks, followed by a flurry of activity which threw half-a-dozen offenders into the toils of the law during the past week.

Allen Griffin, Monterey publisher, paid a penitent visit to the court on Tuesday, and paid $10 as a result of his hurried trip through Carmel one evening last week. He was convicted of traveling past Sunset school at a rate of 25 miles per hour.

Of dozens of college students in town last week, only two were arrested for traffic violations. Bonnie Marshall of Walnut Creek, Mills student, outdistanced the police on one occasion, was later stopped and cited for doing 35 in a 15-mile zone. She paid $10.

Dick Taylor, Stanford student living in Redlands, was cited Saturday for speeding in a 25-mile zone, and was to appear Thursday. R. E. Linsey of Los Angeles will appear April 8 to answer a charge of driving too fast past Sunset school. E. L. Hamilton of Carmel Highlands was fined $5 for speeding.

Laddie Hyde of Menlo Junior College visited his family in Carmel last week-end.

America's NEWEST Car-
The Packard One Twenty

OUT of the largest, most compact and self-contained plant of any in the fine car field, America's oldest fine car maker presents America's newest motor car, the Packard One Twenty. Supplementing the Twelfth Series Packards whose acceptance has been so great that during the last half of 1934 fifty percent, approximately, of all fine car sales were Packard sales, this new and lower priced Packard now brings Packard design into the reach of many more people than ever before. In preparation for the big response such a move rightfully deserves, Packard has invested nearly $7,000,000 in new tools, dies, machinery and plant changes to build Packards for a wider price range. And like the rest of the Packard family with which it is non-competitive, the new Packard One Twenty is Packard in tradition, identity, prestige and name. For it—as for each Packard model—rings out the proud challenge of:

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment." These words from John comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, April 7, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be: "What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun? One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever. . . . All things are full of labour; man cannot utter it: the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing" (Ecclesiastes 1: 3, 4, 8).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "The realities of being, its normal action, and the origin of all things are unseen to mortal sense; whereas the unreal and imitative movements of mortal belief, which would reverse the immortal modus and action, are styled the real . . . Immortal and spiritual facts exist apart from this mortal and material conception" (pp. 212, 213).

Nip and Tuck In Abalone League

It looks like a nip and tuck finish in the Abalone league baseball with only three of the nine-game series to go. The Pilots and the Shamrocks are now tied for first place in the standing column.

Last Sunday's games resulted in the Pilots taking the Shamrocks by a score of 11 to 6. Both these teams now have a percentage of .664. Here's the box score which tells the story:

Advisory Board Announced for Monterey Peninsula Orchestra

THE recently formed Monterey Peninsula Orchestra Association announced this week appointment of an advisory board, consisting of Mrs. F. M. Blanchard, O. W. Bardarson, Mrs. Ralph Coote, Mrs. William Coffin, Hurd Comstock, Mrs. Hurd Comstock, Mrs. Henry F. Dickinson, Mrs. Kathrine McFarland Howe, Dr. R. W. Hollingsworth, F. A. Ingalls, Miss Ruth Inglis, Miss Ella Kellogg, Dr. R. A. Kocher, Miss Helen Lisle, Mrs. Eugene Marble, Mrs. Caroline Pickit, Mrs. James Parker, Noel Sullivan, Mrs. Jesse Lynch Williams, Miss Helen Willard, Miss Emma Waldvogel and Dr. Mast Wolfson. An executive committee has also been formed, including Dene Denny, chairman, Miss Ruth Inglis, Mrs. Hurd Comstock, Mrs. Kathrine McFarland Howe, Mrs. Eugene Marble, Mrs. Henry F. Dickinson, Miss Helen Willard, Miss Hazel Watrous, Mrs. Caroline Pickit, and Mrs. John Bathen.

Campaign for Funds

At a meeting held last Sunday evening it was decided to launch a campaign for funds, with the slogan, "Support the Orchestra." How this valued institution has been kept going for three years already is a miracle. The Carmel Music Society has sponsored it from time to time; the Denny-Watrous Gallery has untiringly fostered it, and one or two generous members of the community have been sufficiently impressed with what it is doing to assist it, but for the most part it has struggled along on thin air. Open rehearsals are held weekly at the Denny-Watrous gallery, with an admission of 10 cents.

Several brilliant musicians have been attracted as conductors. Michel Penha, Carol Weston and Ernst Bacon have all given generously of their time and energy with little or no compensation, in order that a thing so well worth while might not lose ground.

Summer Plans Exciting

Orchestra plans for the coming summer are sufficiently exciting to cause some Carmelites with plans for vacations elsewhere to wonder if they have chosen wisely. Ernst Bacon plans to spend two and a half months here, and through his influence Sascha Jacobinoff, who was concert master for the Philadelphia Symphony under Stokowski, has been persuaded to spend the summer here. His pupils will follow him, and they have consented to play in the orchestra.

There is to be a Bach festival in the late spring or early summer, and the orchestra is already rehearsing toward that end. Several fine soloists will be heard with them.

When it is realized just what the orchestra means to Carmel; how it is envied elsewhere; whom it brings to the village and what a distinctive quality it gives to the community, it will surely be heard when it makes its appeal for funds. Contributions of even $1.00 a year will be deeply appreciated.

GIRL FOR CROPLEYS

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Cropley of Pacific Grove are celebrating the birth of a daughter at the Peninsula Community Hospital on March 30. The baby weighed six pounds at her arrival and has been named Marylin Joyce.

Mrs. H. N. Dascomb of Jaffrey, N. H., who has been a winter resident of Pine Inn for a number of years, expects to leave for the east Monday, accompanied by her friend, Miss Alice M. Cann of Carmel Point. They will make the trip to New York by the ocean route.
